<tbody>
<tr>
<td>KT is a process that emphasizes on the flow of knowledge (e.g. Train-the-trainer approach)</td>
<td>SL emphasizes the exchange of learning on same level but not “helping” with hierarchy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KT can take place anywhere, anytime and it is not time-, place-confined for everybody</td>
<td>SL is a pedagogy that’s combines academic study with community service</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KT eyes on the benefits of the community in the process (whether the community master the knowledge taught and apply in daily life)</td>
<td>SL emphasizes the process of ‘serving’ and ‘learning’ while the server and the to-be-served both benefit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KT’s ultimate goal: Community Education</td>

Community: Why Elder Academy??

- University of third age, echoing the situation of aging society (26% of total population aged 65+ in 2030) and the fourth pillar of “Active Ageing”
- 109 school-based Elder Academy (April 2011)
- The objectives of Elder Academy are
  - promotes active aging and lifelong learning
  - Foster intergenerational communication solidarity
  - Enhance students’ whole person development
  - Enhance the learning and teaching mode
Conclusion

- KT is a vehicle operating on SL platform
  - KT is a necessary process and SL is one of the means
  - SL fuels the process of KT that enables KT to reach out to the community (i.e. EA)
  - KT x SL is the match-maker behind the cooperation: University x Secondary Schools x Elder Academy
- KT make the society more self-sufficient
  - The concept of “everybody can be a trainer” enables whoever to actively participate in activities, as agents of knowledge and skills transfer to make our community a better place to live, to enhance the idea of ‘mutual help’ among dweller
